lized community ought not to enter into an arbitration treaty with them, at least until we have gone much further than at present in securing some kind of international police action.

Arbitration Effective.

But all really civilized communities should have effective arbitration treaties among themselves. I believe that these liable to arise between such nations, if ment that each contracting party will relute sovereignty within that territory, and the equally explicit agreement that (aside from the very rare cases where the nation's honor is vitally concerned) all other possible subjects of controversy will be submitted to arbitration. Such a treaty would insure peace unless one party deliberately violated it. Of course, as yet there is no adsquate safeguard against such deliberate violation, but the establishment of a sufficient number of these treaties would go a long way toward creating a world opinion which would finally find expression in the provision of methods to forbid or punish any such violation.
